Courses of Instruction.

---

I. CLASSICAL COURSE.

This has been extended and strengthened in the present catalogue, to meet the requirements of a thorough Collegiate Course, and is now commensurate with that pursued in the first Colleges in the country.

II. SCIENTIFIC COURSE.

This has been arranged with reference to the wants of an Institution admitting the sexes upon an equality. Unlike the ordinary Scientific Course, it embraces the same instruction in the Latin, Spanish and German, as the Classical Course. Young ladies taking this Course, with the addition of Music, Painting and Drawing, will have completed as thorough a course as young men who finish the Classical course.

III. ACADEMICAL COURSE.

This is not a distinct and separate course of study, as such, but under it pupils are permitted to pursue such optional studies as they may desire and can advantageously pursue.

This course is recommended only to transient students, or to such as have not the time or means necessary to pursue a regular course. The Faculty will, in all cases, decide as to what studies Academical students can pursue to advantage, and thoroughness in the fundamental English branches will be insisted upon.

IV. PREPARATORY COURSE.

This course has been organized to supply the want of suitable Preparatory Schools. Pupils with a fair common school education will ordinarily complete this course in two years, though it may be completed in a shorter time.

The Primary Department, hitherto connected with the Institution, has been discontinued, and no pupils are now received into the College under the age of twelve, or who cannot pass a satisfactory examination in Reading, Writing, Orthography, Geography and the fundamental rules of Arithmetic.

REQUISITES FOR ADMISSION.

Candidates for admission to the Freshman Class will be required to pass a satisfactory examination in the following studies:

I. English Grammar, Ancient and Modern Geography, Wilson's Outlines of History, and Quackenbos' Composition.

II. Andrews and Stoddard's Latin Grammar, Andrews' Latin Reader, Sallust's Cataline, Cicero's Select Orations, Virgil's Æneid—six books; Arnold's Prose Composition—first twelve chapters.

III. Kuhner's Elementary Greek Grammar, Colton's or Felton's Greek Reader, Xenophon's Anabasis—three books.

IV. Arithmetic—Written and Intellectual; Robinson's Higher Algebra to quadratic equations.

Candidates for admission to the Scientific Course will be examined in all the studies named above, excepting the Greek language.

Candidates for advanced standing are examined in the preparatory studies, and in all the studies that have been pursued by the class they wish to enter, or their equivalent.

The regular examinations for admission to College will take place on the two days immediately preceding the commencement of the Fall Term.

Applicants should bring testimonials of good moral character, or, if coming from other Colleges or Schools, certificates of honorable dismissal.

LATIN LANGUAGE AND LITERATURE.

The examination for admission, in this department, will be rigid and critical. The study of Ancient Geography should be commenced with the Geography of the Latin Reader. The Grammar should be mastered, and its paragraphs memorized, so as to be referred to by number. The Latin Prose Composition should be commenced with the Orations.

The syntax of the Grammar, including that of the modes and participles, should be diligently applied to the Cicero. The rules of quantity, in the Grammar, should be mastered during the reading of the Æneid, and pupils taught to scan readily.

The College course in this department embraces a select series of the Latin classics, accompanied by progressive exercises in the analysis and composition of the language, together with lectures on Roman History, Art and Literature.

GREEK LANGUAGE AND LITERATURE.

Preparatory Students must render themselves entirely familiar with the rules of accent, as taught in Kuhner's Grammar. Attention must be paid to the breathings, and pupils taught to lay the stress of the voice, in all cases, upon the syllable where the Greek accent stands. The euphonic rules for changes in declensions and conjugations, must be rendered perfectly familiar. The Reader and Anabasis will be read with constant reference to the syntax of the Grammar, and all sentences carefully analyzed.

Students should practice themselves in drawing accurate maps of Italy, Greece and Asia Minor.

The following books and authorities will be found valuable for reference in the study of the Latin and Greek: Liddell and Scott's Greek-English Lexicon, Hadley's Greek Grammar, Keightley's Mythology, Gump's Latin Grammar, Sprunnon's Ancient Atlas, Andrews' Latin Lexicon, Grote's History of Greece, Smith's Dictionary of Antiquities, Arnold's History of Rome.

BELLES LETTRES.

The instruction in this department includes Moral and Intellectual Philosophy, Rhetoric, Logic, English Literature, Comparative Philosophy, Elements of Criticism, History of Philosophy, Constitutional Law and Evidences of Christianity.

A theological class will be taught on Sabbath, embracing Scriptural Geography, Biblical History, Natural Theology, Evidences of Prophecy, Church History, Greek Testament, Pulpit Oratory, and Scientific Proofs of the Authenticity of the Bible.

MATHEMATICAL DEPARTMENT.

The preparatory training should be thorough. Problems must be analyzed, and the principles of their solution explained. The axioms and principles involved in all operations in Algebra must be understood. A thorough knowledge of Intellectual Arithmetic will be insisted upon. Recitations in this department will be without the use of the text book by the pupil.

The class in surveying have the use of a first class transit instrument.

DEPARTMENT OF MUSIC.

The object of this department is to furnish a complete musical education, practical and theoretical, to those desirous of becoming teachers or performers. It has been thoroughly reorganized, and is now under the instruction of a gentleman of thorough musical education, and extensive experience as an instructor.

In thus employing experienced teachers, and furnishing the best instruments for practice, unusual facilities are furnished to such as will avail themselves of them, for acquiring a thorough musical education.

Students will receive diplomas in this department, on completing and passing a satisfactory examination in the following course :

I. THEORY.

Johnson's Thorough Bass.

Johnson's Harmony.

Marxs' Musical Composition.

II. PRACTICE.

Richardson's New Method.

LECTURES.

Public lectures are given by the Faculty, before the students, on Wednesday evenings, throughout the year, on subjects connected with the respective departments.

Familiar lectures will also be delivered to the several college classes on topics related to their studies.

LITERARY SOCIETIES.

The Athenæan and Philosophian Societies hold weekly meetings, and afford excellent facilities for practice and improvement in composition, debate and parliamentary usages. They have libraries for the use of their members. New students are advised to connect themselves with one of these societies immediately on entering College.

---

LIBRARY.

This has been increased, by recent accessions, to nearly seven hundred volumes. Donations are solicited from friends of the College.

DEGREES.

The degree of "Bachelor of Arts" is conferred upon students who complete the Classical Course, and pass the examination in the same.

The degree of "Bachelor of Science" is conferred upon students who complete the Scientific Course, and pass the examination in the same.

DISCIPLINE.

It is believed that better results are secured by few rules, rigidly enforced, than by a multiplicity of regulations administered with laxity.

It has been demonstrated that the best security against vice and dissipation, is hard work and close application to books. Every student is required to be in his place at all stated exercises, from the beginning to the end of the term.

Students must be present on the first day of the term, and recitations will be commenced on that day.

Promptness in all scholarly duties will be exacted, and no failure will be tolerated.

The Institution will be made an uncomfortable place for idlers, and young men and women who are constitutionally opposed to hard work are advised to seek educational facilities elsewhere.

Students are required to remain at the College from 8 o'clock A. M., to 12½ o'clock, P. M., and to be in their own rooms, engaged in study, from 2½ o'clock, P. M., to 5 o'clock, P. M., and from 7½ o'clock, P. M., till the time of retiring.

This requirement is deemed all-essential, and will be rigidly enforced.

No student will be permitted to leave town without permission from the President.

The right of parents and guardians to detain their children temporarily from school, to dictate the studies they shall pursue, or to employ their children during study hours, will not be recognized.

Instruction in Music, Painting and Drawing is an exception to the above rule, and is optional.

All pupils are required to attend religious service twice each Sabbath. A religious meeting, especially for students, is held each Sabbath.

Each session of the school is opened with reading of the Scriptures, singing and prayer.

LOCATION.

The Institution is located twelve miles south of Lawrence, on the line of the Leavenworth, Lawrence and Fort Gibson Railroad, in a flourishing and prosperous little town of some seven hundred inhabitants. By the terms of the conveyance from the Town Company, no intoxicating drinks can ever be sold within the city limits. The community is eminently an intelligent and social one, and the town an attractive place of residence for such as desire to educate their children in a wholesome moral atmosphere.
